

Corporate Profile

About Us

We are a South African registered company, with the capability to service your freight requirements worldwide. We deliver cost-effective solutions for the strategic sourcing, logistics and distribution (customs clearing, freight forwarding) of commodities, delicate products, chemicals, machinery, and equipment employed mainly in the FMCG, mining, manufacturing and construction industries. We are also able to cater for various other industries.

Qabula identifies itself as a procurement and logistics partner, and we pride ourselves in striving to deliver savings to client businesses of all sizes, along their entire procurement value chain; from manufacturing locations to delivery.

Qabula's logistics complements or seamlessly integrate supply chains where needed: We offer a total mobility solution including delivery, offloading, warehousing, clearing as well as stock and asset management expertise.

Through our extensive partners' network, Qabula is able to offer its clientele warehousing and storage space located close to their customer base. This translates into reduced costs and enhanced service levels for our clients, as they are able to more readily meet the demands of their own customers.

Sourcing and Supply

Our deep understanding of goods mobility skillfully blended with our network of expert partners, enable us to provide cost-effective and fully-customized sourcing and logistics solutions anywhere Worldwide.

We carefully curate the partners we work with and have developed robust industry relationships to offer our clientele a reliable and agile service network for:

- Machinery
- Mining, construction, and engineering equipment
- Industrial, chemical and specialty products
- Delicate goods
- FMCG Goods

Equipment, machinery, FMCG Goods and chemicals are sourced from original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) and approved suppliers such that traceability and safety standards are enforced at all times.

Our thriving value-add perishable and delicate goods practice allow us to handle your most delicate, temperature-sensitive, and time-sensitive products (i.e flowers, fruits, eggs, canned food) in accordance with stringent standards of operation taking into account all applicable regulations in origin and destination locations.

In addition, the storage facilities and trucks are operated by qualified associates trained in best practices such that thermal protection and preservation of the cold chain is ensured at all times during the goods journey (loading, offloading, storage, transportation, and delivery) in order to maximize the product shelf life and avoid deterioration.

Air Freight

Qabula is widely known as a full-feature logistics services partner that provides fit-for-purpose solutions. All Qabula forwarding staff involved in the transporting of goods participate in international and in-house training and certification programs. Training is carried out in accordance with the framework and regulations established by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (South Africa) and standards specified in the IATA PCR.

In addition to training provided by partner - companies, Qabula also provides frequent refresher training sessions for destination affiliates involved in the last-mile delivery and local handling of the transported goods. Our quick turn-around time for service and delivery has made us the first choice among our peers for the time-sensitive air freight dispatch of perishable and delicate food sector products in direction to West and Central Africa.

Perishable cargo is a consignment which content will perish due to altitude, heat, moisture, climate, or other environmental conditions or lapse of the given time period.

Qabula Cargo's cold chain logistics are prepared specifically in order to protect the cargo content and prevent them from deterioration. All goods are treated hygienically and in accordance with industry standards, regulations, and client's specific requirements during loading, offloading and transportation.

Products, foodstuffs, and produce such as vegetables, fruits, fish, meat, and flower products are stored safely in storage units suited for the specific type of cargo being conveyed and are stored under the temperature range requested by the sender or producer.

Sea Freight

Our cross-docking services ensure the multi-destination forwarding of break-bulk, originally received as a bulk consignment. Inversely, we consolidate shipments from different origins for containerization and delivery to single destinations so our clients can save on time and reduce their storage and inventory-related costs.

This is generally the most cost-effective freight method and we offer customized solutions for both full shared container loads that are suitable for canned goods, dry or dehydrated and non-perishable foods, and all those items that do not require refrigeration during transportation and after opening.

Road Freight

Qabula offers road freight for the delivery of goods anywhere in the SADC region.

This is in many instances the most viable alternative to sea transport and can be, subject to the final destination, more cost-effective than sea-based freight.

We provide a wide assortment of value-add solutions and whether it is a heavy-duty, abnormal load, breakbulk, full load, or a less-than-container-load cargo, we ensure that clients benefit from our specialist knowledge and receive the most cost-effective service.

The facilities and fleet we operate from are manned by qualified associates trained in best practices to deliver peace of mind when it comes to the secure and on-time delivery of goods.

Clearing and Forwarding

With a strong commitment to continuously deliver service excellence, our import and export specialists have a deep understanding of clearing and forwarding requirements of a wide range of sectors, enabling them to suggest and deliver improvements that provide tangible value to your business.

- Classification and value assistance
- Import and compliance consulting
- Import and export documentation
- Duty minimization
- Industry specific policy concessions
- Licensed customs brokers
- Tariff consulting

General Logistics

We offer competitively priced logistics and courier services for businesses. As a leading logistics company we specialize in getting whatever you need delivered or distributed to its destination, quickly, reliably and at a competitive price.

The benefits of using our logistics services can include reduced transport costs, much faster turnaround times on customer orders and easier, faster, more accurate inventory management.
